- Deflation is generally considered to be more harmful to an economy than moderate inflation because it can lead to a decrease in consumer spending and investment. When prices are falling, consumers tend to delay their purchases in anticipation of even lower prices in the future. This can lead to a recession, as businesses are forced to cut production and jobs.
- Moderate inflation, on the other hand, can actually be beneficial to an economy. It can encourage businesses to invest and innovate, as they know that they will be able to charge higher prices for their products and services in the future. Moderate inflation can also help to reduce unemployment, as businesses are more likely to hire workers when they know that they will be able to pass on the cost of higher wages to consumers.

Q4. Consider the following statements:

1. Usually lenders suffer and borrowers benefit out of inflation.
2. Holding money remains an intelligent economic decision during inflation.
3. With every inflation the currency of the country appreciates.

How many of the given above statement(s) is/are the Effects of Inflation?

- (a) Only one
- (b) Only two
- (c) All three
- (d) None

Ans: (a)

Explanation:

- Inflation redistributes wealth from creditors to debtors, i.e., lenders suffer and borrowers benefit out of inflation. The opposite effect takes place when inflation falls (i.e., deflation).
- Holding money does not remain an intelligent economic decision (because money loses value with every increase in inflation).
- With every inflation the currency of the economy depreciates (loses its exchange value in front of a foreign currency) provided it follows the flexible currency regime.
